

BURKINA FASO

Over the next year, you can help provide families with a sustainable livelihood.

Life in Burkina Faso

Internal conflict in Burkina Faso has displaced thousands. Homes have been damaged or destroyed due to attacks, limiting people's movement and increasing the level of hunger families are experiencing.

It is estimated that over 2 million people are internally displaced throughout the country.

Families have fled from their home villages to settle in more secure places around the country. In needing to flee, families have had to leave everything behind. People have lost their sources of income as there is not enough work for everyone, making it difficult to provide for their families.

Help us provide families with the skills and training they need to rebuild their lives and livelihoods.

FOR ONE YEAR

WE'RE RAISING $24,000

TO PROVIDE TRAINING

TO 50 FAMILIES

How You Can Help

As poultry farming is part of the daily life of families in Burkina Faso, gaining skills in this area will provide families with nutritious sources of food and help them earn sustainable income as they can sell their surplus in the local markets. Working with a local organization in Burkina Faso, ERDO is helping to empower families in re-establishing their livelihoods.

You can help provide 50 learners with training in chicken breeding techniques. These 50 learners will undergo a four-day training workshop in which they will learn how to properly care for chickens, how to prepare their food, how to construct and maintain a chicken coop, and how to protect against and treat certain types of diseases that affect poultry to ensure the continued health of the chickens.

Learners will then receive their own chickens and materials so that they are able to raise them for household use. This will help provide families with more protein-rich food and combat hunger as they have more reliable food sources in the home.

Participants will also learn how to establish operating accounts and marketing strategies so they are able to sell any extra eggs or chickens in the local markets for a steady source of income.

You can make a difference for families in Burkina Faso so they can gain skills they need to provide for themselves and their families.
