

KENYA

Over three years, help us transform communities through holistic development.

Life in Kenya

In Kenya, homes have little access to running water and proper hygiene. There are few healthcare options and people are at high risk for infections and disease. After years of drought, the land has become very dry, making it difficult for families to grow and buy food.

Many people work as casual labourers, meaning they don't have a stable income and find it hard to support their families. Young people, women and children are vulnerable with high unemployment, few resources and even fewer social supports.

Together, we can treat the root causes of poverty through education, training and evangelism.

How You Can Help

Working with a local, church-based partner in Kenya, we are using Community Health Evangelism (CHE) to see transformative change! CHE is an educational and training program that equips community members to identify issues and mobilize resources to address them.

The overall goal of CHE is to see families empowered and lives transformed through development strategies that are designed by and for the local community. In other words, our partners are empowering the community to change itself!

For the next 3 years, our partner will be working with 45,200 individuals, or 9,040 families, in five communities in Kenya. They will promote holistic and long-lasting change by teaching classes on preventative health, maternal care, childcare, disease prevention, sanitation, water treatment and purification, and nutrition. These practical areas of learning will be partnered with mentorship, evangelism, discipleship and psychosocial support.

Families will receive skill training to start business and savings groups. Our partners will help people in the community meet long-term financial goals for themselves and their neighbours.

By supporting this CHE project, you can help us empower people in Kenya to see their lives and their communities transformed forever.
